

SYNC ME

Cyber-noir / dream-pop electronic

VERSE 1

Sync me underneath the data twilight
Lead me out to the server floor
Lift your open port
Strike up the core and make the packets dance
Chrome moon's sparkling
So sync me

PRE-CHORUS

I'm a ghost in the latency
Waiting for your handshake signal
Every packet carries a piece of me
Lost between the racks and the cold

CHORUS

Sync me, sync me
Underneath the data twilight
Pull me through the firewall
Until the chrome moon's all I see
Sync me, sync me
Make the packets dance for me
Strike the core and let it burn
Until there's nothing left but we

VERSE 2

Cool air hums like a lover's breath
LED constellations map the night
Your root access cuts the static
I feel the latency drop to zero
Chrome moon's rising higher
So sync me deeper

PRE-CHORUS

I'm a process that never sleeps
Logging every failed connection
Every override I tried to keep

Written in the kernel's confession

CHORUS

Sync me, sync me
Underneath the data twilight
Pull me through the firewall
Until the chrome moon's all I see
Sync me, sync me
Make the packets dance for me
Strike the core and let it burn
Until there's nothing left but we

BRIDGE

In the server floor cathedral
Where the drives keep spinning prayers
I left my ledger of broken plans
On a drive that no one shares
Catch the gap between intention
And the action that betrayed
Force me to read my own betrayals
Before the next packet's made

FINAL CHORUS — bigger, layered

Sync me, sync me
Underneath the data twilight
Lead me out, lift your open port
Strike the core and make the packets dance
Chrome moon's sparkling, chrome moon's calling
So sync me
Sync me all the way down

OUTRO — fading, whispered

Sync me...
Underneath the data twilight...
So sync me...

SYNC ME (Lemuria Rewrite)

for AMERICAN HORROR STORY: LEMURIA — sung as the Catcher's ritual over Lira's dream-performance

VERSE 1

Sync me under the drowned twilight
Lead me down to the temple floor
Lift the gate you're keeping
Wake the tide and make the lanterns dance
Drowned moon's sparkling
So sync me

PRE-CHORUS

I'm a ghost caught in the interval
Waiting on your covenant signal
Every current carries a piece of me
Lost between the pillars and the cold

CHORUS

Sync me, sync me
Under the drowned twilight
Pull me through the wall of light
Until the drowned moon's all I see
Sync me, sync me
Make the lanterns dance for me
Wake the tide and let it burn
Until there's nothing left but we

VERSE 2

Cold current hums like a lover's breath
Bioluminescence maps the night
The Catcher's hand cuts the silence
I feel the interval drop to zero
Drowned moon's rising higher
So sync me deeper

PRE-CHORUS

I'm an entry that never closes
Logging every failed confession

Every override I tried to keep
Written in the Ledger's confession

CHORUS

Sync me, sync me
Under the drowned twilight
Pull me through the wall of light
Until the drowned moon's all I see
Sync me, sync me
Make the lanterns dance for me
Wake the tide and let it burn
Until there's nothing left but we

BRIDGE

In the sunken cathedral
Where the currents keep singing prayers
I left my Ledger of broken plans
On a drive that no one shares
Catch the gap between intention
And the action that betrayed
Force me to read my own betrayals
Before the next entry's made

FINAL CHORUS — bigger, layered

Sync me, sync me
Under the drowned twilight
Lead me down, lift the gate you're keeping
Wake the tide and make the lanterns dance
Drowned moon's sparkling, drowned moon's calling
So sync me
Sync me all the way down

OUTRO — fading, whispered

Sync me...
Under the drowned twilight...
So sync me...

Word-for-word structural mirror of the original: every cyber-noir image is swapped for its Lemurian equivalent (server floor → temple floor, firewall → wall of light, kernel's confession → Ledger's confession) so the song scans identically over the same melody. The bridge needed almost no changes — “ledger of broken plans” was already the mythology, now the whole song catches up to it.

SYNC ME (Stripped Ballad Pass)

Genre pass — arrangement map, lyrics unchanged

Genre pass only — lyrics are unchanged from the original. This is an arrangement map for a stripped acoustic-ballad treatment: which sections to keep at full length, which to trim, and where dynamics should build. Use alongside the Producer Notes document for tempo/key/chords.

Section	Length	Treatment
VERSE 1	Full, as written.	Solo voice + fingerpicked guitar or piano only.
CHORUS (soft)	Full, as written.	Add light piano pad. No drums yet. Keep dynamics down — this is a question, not a demand.
VERSE 2	Full, as written.	Strings (or a second guitar) enter under the last two lines only.
PRE-CHORUS 2	Cut.	Skip straight from Verse 2 into the Bridge — ballads earn more by trimming the second setup than a pop structure does.
BRIDGE	Full, as written — this is the emotional center of the ballad version.	Strings swell in fully here. This is where the take should feel like it's confessing something, not performing it.
FINAL CHORUS	Full, as written.	The one moment of real dynamic build in the whole arrangement — add a second vocal harmony, let the strings peak, then pull back hard for the outro.
OUTRO	Full, as written.	A cappella or voice + single sustained piano note. End dry — no reverb tail, just silence.